SIGNIFICANT EVENTS

Case Report 24-0066

At 12:44 p.m. on Jan. 4 officers were dispatched to the unit block of North Main Street in reference to an occupied vehicle that was parked illegally for several hours. Officers contacted the occupants, a 24-year-old male and a 33-year-old female, who both appeared to be under the influence of drugs. They were in possession of 11 blue M30 pills, drug paraphernalia, and a small amount of crack cocaine. The female was processed and released with a summons, and the male was processed and booked into Adams County jail.

THIS WEEK'S SAFETY TIP

January is Colorado Human Trafficking Awareness Month. Traffickers can be of any race, gender, or social or economic status. Often a trafficker is someone the victim knows and trusts such as an intimate partner, employer, friend, or family member. Traffickers use force, fraud, and/or coercion to control victims, and prevent them from escaping the situation. A trafficker might make promises of a better life, offer legal status, make threats or become violent.

It can be difficult to know for sure if someone is being trafficked. They may not even understand it themselves. It is a complex crime. Some indicators include (but are not limited to):

- They are not being paid for work, or are being paid very little
- They are not being paid for work because they owe the employer for food or housing or other necessities
- They are being coerced into engaging in commercial sex
- They are being watched
- They are not permitted to speak for themselves or go anywhere by themselves
- They are being bullied, yelled at, physically handled roughly, or being intimidated
- They appear afraid
- There are signs of injury or illness that have not been addressed

Even if these indicators are present, it does not mean for sure that the person is a victim of a trafficker. If you think you or someone else is being trafficked, call Colorado's Human Trafficking Hotline at 866-455-5075 or text 720-999-9724. If you're not sure and want to learn more, visit the Colorado Human Trafficking Council Website.
